

Patric Eberle – Single Cell Dispensing and Picking

The aim is to develop a technology for automated single cell dispensing and picking.

This leads to the first smart pipette system which can deposit single cells with single species resolution, and can also pick and move single cells.

The vision is that this technology not only improves throughput and reliability in single cell handling but also enables with its high versatility new ways of cell patterning