Only software that is foreseen to be licensed to a third party and is not licensed as Open Source, shall be disclosed to us with this form. This form should also be used in case a software is dual-licensed or multi-licensed (multi-licensed software is not merely an Open Source distribution).

Please refer also to our webpage for more information.

If you want to license your software solely under an Open Source License, recognized by the Open Source Initiative, please follow the instructions on our webpage.

Additionally, all software that is licensed to third parties shall be uploaded to the ETH Data Archive managed by the ETH Library (please see here). The software (source code) uploaded into the ETH Data Archive will then be retained for at least 15 years. For uploading of the software follow the instructions here.

Software developers should use this Software Disclosure form to summarize the key data of their developed software at ETH Zurich. This information will be treated confidentially and will be used to clarify the further exploitation of the software.

Please complete this form and send it electronically to: ip-disclosure@ethz.ch

This software disclosure can be signed electronically.

Should you have any questions, please call us on 044 632 29 63 or write an e-mail to ip-disclosure@ethz.ch
Further information is on our Software web page.

Please send us the fully signed document to ip-disclosure@ethz.ch

A DEVELOPER(S)

Developers are those persons who have made any contribution to the software (even if only a very small contribution) or provided any text, graphics, photos, video, sound effects, voice recording, or other tangible item ("material") that has been incorporated into the software.

This section should be completed in full by each person who developed the software. The Software Disclosure form must be signed by all developers and the responsible professor(s) on page 13 (Section J).

B DETAILS OF THE SOFTWARE

We will use this document to obtain a preliminary overview of the software. Please detail the primary purpose of the software and how it is used.

Please detail also any special hardware or software environment(s) that are necessary to use the software (see [5]).

| [1] | Description ofthe software <sup>9</sup> | Specify (a) the problems the software solves or opportunities it addresses, (b) the general utility of the software, (c) the advantages and disadvantages in comparison to current software, (d) the best ways of using the software as well as possible variations, (e) drawings, schematics and flow diagrams, as appropriate, and (f) references to relevant software, publications, copyrights and patents.  Use additional sheets as necessary or attach your detailed description, which should contain all the above listed items, to this document. |

C PATENTING OF SOFTWARE

If the software solves a technical problem in a non-obvious manner, it may be patentable under certain circumstances. If you believe that the software is patentable, please also submit the related Invention Disclosure to us (see here). The Invention Disclosure should be submitted to us at least 3 months before any dissemination/publication is envisaged. If the functionalities of the software are disclosed before a patent application is filed, then the novelty of the software is destroyed (making patenting impossible).

| [7] | Patenting | Do you believe that the underlying ideas of the software should be patented? |

D EMBEDDED OR ACCESSED THIRD PARTY CODE

Please provide a list of all third party code embedded in or accessed by the disclosed software when it is run.

Please include all open source, free executable, public domain code, library code, and all other executable or source code not written by the authors mentioned in section A, whether modified or not. ALL AUTHORS MUST DISCLOSE ALL OF THE THIRD PARTY CODE AND MATERIALS THAT HAVE BEEN EMBEDDED IN THE SOFTWARE. Software code and materials easily available for download and available without costs are NOT necessarily free of obligations (e.g. license conditions). These codes and materials are restricted by licensing terms that must be reviewed and complied with. All code and materials included in the software (even if it's originating from private individuals) that were not developed by the authors must be listed here. Also list any code or materials with which the software links, executes, or integrates that may not be embedded in the software.

F DEVELOPMENT STATUS AND LICENSING

Please assess the commercial potential and the best way to license the software in the form below. If it is already more or less clear who will license the software, indicate this in this section, as well.

In the case of exclusive licenses, but also in the case of open source licenses, further activities of your research group with industrial partners may be affected. Therefore, please tell us what your personal future plans are for the software.

[11] Development status

Please specify the development status of the software. The software exists as:

Concept or pieces of code

Beta test

Software tool for academic research

Software tool ready to license as a product (off the shelf, with GUI, etc.)

Other:

Will the software be further developed?

No

Yes; internally at ETH Zurich

together with an external partner (e.g. industry, other research institute, etc.)

by an external partner (without any contribution of ETH Zurich)

Remarks:

[12] Licensing scenario

What is the desired or most likely licensing scenario?

Academic use

Non-exclusive license or license to software reseller

Exclusive license to a company

Other:

Could an exclusive license be granted, or would this obstruct your research in the future?

No

Yes

G FINANCIAL SUPPORT

This section serves to elucidate if ETH Zurich has any obligations to a third-party. To assess the ownership of the software, it is absolutely mandatory to know if the software was developed within a project with a third party or utilizing material (e.g. code) from third parties for which a contract exists. In such a case these third parties may claim rights to the software.

J SIGNATURES OF THE DEVELOPER(S) AND PROFESSOR(S)<sup>20</sup>

By submitting this software disclosure, I declare that I and, if applicable, the other developers mentioned in this Software Disclosure are the only developers of the software. No other developers are known to me and no further dependencies are known to me except those outlined in Section [8].

I will, to the best of my ability, participate actively in the search for licensees and I will support ETH Zurich in their search for licensees. I agree to cooperate with IP & Licensing in its efforts to license the software and to protect ETH Zurich's interest in the software, including executing necessary documents, giving testimony, and providing pertinent information. I further agree not to publish the software source code or the object code until the last license agreement expires, or without first conferring with and obtaining the agreement of IP & Licensing.

Developers of software, that is commercialized, are normally entitled to a share of one third of the net income. The individual share will be calculated according to the below contribution. I am aware that my share will be paid to my salary account as long as I am employed by ETH Zurich. In order to guarantee payments, any changes of address shall be reported within 30 days, referenced with the internal reference number (e.g. 2023-xxx), to: ETH Zurich, IP & Licensing HG E 36, Raemistrasse 101, 8092 Zurich (Switzerland).

I hereby confirm that I have read the complete software disclosure form and agree with it.
