

Background Information KOF Economic Barometer

September 2023 Revision from Vintage 2022 to Vintage 2023

The KOF Economic Barometer is a composite leading indicator for the Swiss economy. KOF updates the set of underlying indicators and their weights annually after the release of previous year's annual Gross Domestic Product (GDP) data by the Swiss Federal Statistical Office (FSO). The 2023 revision took place in September. Our reference series is the smoothed continuous growth rate of Swiss GDP distributed across the three months of a quarter, based on the official quarterly real GDP statistics, adjusted for the effects of major international sporting events, released by the Swiss State Secretariat for Economic Affairs (SECO) in early September 2023. SECO in turn takes the release of the previous year's annual GDP data published by the FSO into account. The 2022 vintage of the KOF Barometer (published until August 2023) comprised 364 indicator variables. The current 2023 vintage, which is now replacing the 2022 vintage, consists of 324 indicator variables, selected from a pool of 626 candidate variables. Compared to the previous vintage, 57 indicators are new and 97 dropped out of the set of selected indicators (cf. table in the appendix).

The following graph shows the current and previous vintages. The revision affects the whole time span as covered by the Barometer. This is due to the changes in the reference series, the resulting indicator selection, the updating of the seasonal factors as well as the new indicator weights. From this year on, the Corona phase is processed by means of a robustification technique to mitigate the impact on the indicator selection. In addition, due to the Federal Council decisions on the Corona pandemic, the filter weights for computing the reference series between the end of 2019 and the beginning of 2022 are no longer symmetrical, but predominantly asymmetrical.

The change from the 2022 to the 2023 vintage resulted in a mean absolute revision of 3.6 index points (calculated from January 2013, the start of the in-sample period used for indicator selection, to December 2021, the last common in-sample data point for both vintages). The correlation between the two is 0.88, indicating a very strong coherence between the two vintages.
