March 2022

The end of the winter semester was very exciting for the CSNOW team as we were able to hold our traditional Schnupperstudium event in person at ETH! Moreover, through a talk given by our leader Ece, we shared our knowledge and lessons learned with the CS department of the Aalto University (Finland) that aims to start an organization similar to CSNOW.

We start the new semester by "Getting to know Julia Dannath-Schuh", the Vice President for Personnel Development and Leadership of ETH. Read further for more details and invitations to other events!

...And please don't forget to enjoy and celebrate the International Women's day on March 8!

Schnupperstudium successfully in person!

For the first time since two years, we were able to hold our traditional Schnupperstudium in person at ETH! It was very empowering to see so many excited young women keen on learning about computer science and how it is to study at ETH.

Interview with Ece Özkan Elsen: "Almost every day, I can say, 'I learned something new today'"

One of the leaders of CSNOW, Ece Özkan Elsen, gave an interview in which she talks about her return to research, why she loves medical data science, and how she works to support other women in computer science. We are very proud of having you as a leader, Ece!

Get to know Julia Dannath-Schuh

Following the successful "Tea time with Sarah Sprigman", we are organizing another moderated Q&A session with a woman in the ETH lead. Julia Dannath-Schuh, the Vice President for Personnel Development and Leadership of ETH, will be our guest this time. Register through the link below to ask Julia about her career path, how it is to be in a leadership position or any other question you might have. We are looking forward to seeing as many of you at the in-person event followed by an Apéro.
